SCENE SELECTIONS

1. Marty DiBergi
2. "Spinal Pap"
3. Dust For Vomit?
4. Bobbi Flekman
5. "Yes I Can!"
6. "Big Bottom"
7. "Shit Sandwich"
8. Sexist Or Sexy?
9. Young Tappers
10. Little Sandwiches
11. "It's One Louder, Isn't It?"
12. Clever Or Stupid?
13. Ian Faith, Manager
14. "Where Are They Now?"
15. "Since My Baby Left Me"
16. "Listen To The Flower People"
17. "None More Black"
18. Jeanine is Brutally Frank
19. "Lick My Love Pump"
20. Airport Security
21. "I'm Your Promo Man!"
22. "Hello, Cleveland!"
23. Heavy Metal In Dobly?
24. Trademark Solos
25. 18" High
26. "Gonna Do Stonehenge?"
27. Fire & Ice
28. Tap Into The Military
29. "PUPPET SHOW And SPINAL TAP"

THIS IS SPINAL TAP is offered in the widescreen format, enabling you to experience the picture exactly as it was originally shown in theatres. Depending on how the film was shot, the widescreen format presents up to 50% more image to the left and right of the screen than the standard "pan & scan" process, thus preserving the director's vision of each scene. Black bars at the top and bottom of the screen are normal for this format.

The widescreen version of this MGM DVD has been encoded to take full advantage of high-resolution "widescreen" television sets. When viewed on this type of television, the film's picture resolution will be significantly increased.

"THIS IS SPINAL TAP"

STARRING CHRISTOPHER GUEST MICHAEL McKEAN HARRY SHEARER ROB REINER
JUNE CHADWICK TONY HENDRA AND BRUNO KIRBY PRODUCED BY KAREN MURPHY
WRITTEN BY CHRISTOPHER GUEST MICHAEL McKEAN ROB REINER AND HARRY SHEARER DIRECTED BY ROB REINER

R

SOUNDTRACK ALBUM AVAILABLE ON UNIVERSAL RECORDS

STUDIO CANAL

THIS IS SPINAL TAP TM & LOGO CANAL+DA. THIS IS SPINAL TAP © 1984 DEG Sale Company B-V, a subsidiary of Canal+. All Rights Reserved. Design & Content © 2000 MGM Home Entertainment Inc. All Rights Reserved. 4001139

HOME ENTERTAINMENT

THIS IS SPINAL TAP

NIGEL TUFNEL

THE EARLY YEARS

Nigel Tufnel was born in Squatney, in London's east end. At the age of six he was given his first guitar by his father. It was a sunburst "Rhythm King" made by Volga-Haafen, a Finnish company trying to jump on the skiffle bandwagon.

Nigel's life changed forever when he met David St. Hubbins, who lived next door. They got on right away and began jamming in a toolshed in David's garden. They were each influenced by early blues artists such as Honkin' Bubba Fulton and Little Sassy Francis. Nigel in particular was hypnotized by the finger picking of Big "Little Daddy" Coleman, a deaf guitar player from the hills of North Carolina who later moved to South Carolina for tax purposes. The rest is history.

DAVID ST. HUBBINS

THE LATER YEARS

David has undergone some radical changes in his personal life, but he hasn't let the world of music pass him by. In early 1998, he and his longtime lady love, designer-astrologist Jeanine Pettibone-St. Hubbins, separated to consider other options. They remain close psychic friends and meet on neutral ground every six weeks to discuss community property. David is also enjoying a long-delayed bout of parenthood, having recently been awarded custody of his adult son by another liaison, Devon McCardle-St. Hubbins.

He continues to scout new talent, lending his expert touch to many a burgeoning career. His newest find: Poca-Pola, a Japanese-American pop trio, with whom he is creating songs for a series of educational shorts called "The Math Bath." Says David, "It's not like the dry old lessons we had at school. It swings. And these Asian girls really know their numbers!"

He continues work on his magnum opus, the operatic Beowulf of London. But rock 'n' roll is still the major means of expression for this "Yeoman of the Codpiece."

DRUMMER NECROLOGY

John "Stumpy" Pepys	(1943-1969)	Gardening accident
Eric "Stumpy Joe" Childs	(1945-1974)	Choked on vomit
Peter "James" Bond	(1949-1977)	Spontaneous combustion
Mick Shrimpton	(1948-1982)	Onstage explosion
Joe "Mama" Besser	(19??-1983)	Missing, presumed dead
Richard ("Ric") Shrimptom	(1948-)	"No one knows what happened to Ric. None of the band members thought to ask each other. We've also heard that he sold his dialysis machine for drugs, and we assumed he died."

DEREK SMALLS

ALL THE YEARS

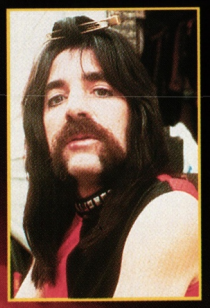
Derek Smalls has always been a seeker. Whether exploring the bass-ticular uses of a second neck, or a seventh string — or simply trying to find his car keys, Derek has never stopped his restless searching. Not for perfection, because, as he says, "Perfection is a destination. Imperfection is the journey."

Derek's journey began more than four decades ago, in the small West Midlands town of Nilford, which is riven by the River Null. His dad Donald "Duff" Smalls was a respected if itinerant businessman, running the local Sani-Fone operation. "That entailed driving a van through the town and surrounding countryside," Derek recalls, "going into people's homes once a week and spraying some kind of vapor on their telephone instruments to sanitize them. At the time," he adds helpfully, "there was widespread concern about catching germs or such like from the phone. Dad was sort of helping people deal with that."

Mother Doris had the musical talent in the family. She sewed the robes for the local church choir. And, says Derek, "she was always humming while she sewed. She said it helped her keep from pricking herself."

More than two decades of Spinal Tap later, Smalls has plenty of distractions to keep him from pricking himself. A prize-winning gardener, Derek has developed and patented a totally black rose, the Death by Midnight, and is working hard to bring forth black carnations and black pansies. During Tap's last hiatus, Smalls joined a Christian rock band, Lambsblood, which charted on Christian radio with "Whole Lotta Lord" and "Godsmacked."

Following Tap's "Break Like the Wind" tour, Smalls starred in a series of comical Belgian television commercials for the tart-like snack Floop, and parlayed his earlier film experience (as Killer #1 in Marco Zamboni's "Roma 79") into auditions for several recent films. Derek has most recently been romantically linked with the Austrian model Ursula Knorr, whom he met in a rehab program.



CAST

Nigel Tufnel	CHRISTOPHER GUEST
David St. Hubbins	MICHAEL McKEAN
Derek Smalls	HARRY SHEARER
Marty DiBergi	ROB REINER
Jeanine Pettibone	JUNE CHADWICK
Ian Faith	TONY HENDRA
Tommy Pischedda	BRUNO KIRBY